

“Welcome back, Mayor!”

Even though the Anchorage Daily News, municipal union leaders and the Assembly campaigned hard against him, most Anchorage voters seem to support the same things Mayor Tom Fink supports. For example, voters approved each of the Charter amendments sponsored by the Mayor, including the line-item veto to reduce Assembly spending, and citizens also voted against higher gasoline taxes.

So the future looks pretty good. And if the Daily News, assembly members and union leaders will listen to the voters and try to cooperate more with the Mayor, we can bring municipal labor costs more in line with the private sector – and Anchorage can continue to be an efficient, attractive place to live without increasing taxes on the citizens. So hang in there, Mayor – we’re gaining on ‘em!

Re-elect Mayor Tom Fink, a good man doing a good job.
