

“And then I said, ‘let’s reduce government spending’...”

Many citizens throughout the country are concerned about the excessive and always increasing amounts of money government spends at all levels. However, most politicians aren’t listening. Year after year, they continue to push for higher taxes, more debt, and larger and larger amounts of government spending, no matter what the citizens say.

Fortunately, Anchorage has a good mayor who is listening. He’s reduced government spending, and Anchorage is now economically stronger, more efficiently run, and a beautiful, attractive place to live. It hasn’t been easy – the mayor has been pretty banged up by some politicians and special interests who would like to raise taxes. But, most citizens say, “keep up the good work, Mayor – and thanks for listening to us little guys!”

Re-elect Mayor Tom Fink, a good man doing a good job.
